VICTORIA FLOREZ

Interim Chief of the Resource Mobilization Division, Inter-American Development Bank (IADB)

Victoria Florez is the Interim Division Chief at the Inter-American Development Bank's (IDB) Resource Mobilization Division, within the Office of Outreach and Partnerships. In this role, Victoria supervises a team that leads the creation and management of partnerships with donor governments, corporations, investors, academic institutions, and other actors. In particular, Victoria seeks to mobilize the knowledge and financial resources of partner organizations to enhance the Bank's work in priority sectors. Victoria has also led the creation of the IDB Group's corporate sustainability index, IndexAmericas, an innovative tool that assesses the commitment of companies operating in Latin America and the Caribbean to environmental, social, corporate governance, and development indicators. Prior to joining the Office of Outreach and Partnerships in 2008, Victoria held diverse positions within the Integration and Trade Department, the Country Department for Central America, and BID Invest, the IDB Group's private sector institution. Victoria joined the IDB Group in 2003 and holds a Masters in Economics from Stockholm University.
