MIKE THOMPSON

Chief Economist, Climate Change Committee

Mike Thompson is Chief Economist at the Committee on Climate Change, the UK's independent statutory advisor on climate change. The CCC provides evidence-based advice on the UK's climate targets, plans and progress in delivering them. Mike directs the CCC's analysis, focusing on reducing UK greenhouse gas emissions as well as work on preparing for the impacts of climate change. He led the CCC's groundbreaking 2019 report that recommended a 2050 Net Zero target for the UK – requiring a 100% reduction in greenhouse gas emissions as a necessary, feasible and cost-effective contribution to stopping global warming. Mike has been part of the CCC's senior team since its creation in 2007.
